What did you accomplish Today?

Today I met up with my group and made sure that we were all on the same page, so I made sure that everyone had the same project up to date installed onto each of their computers. As well as making sure that we each had our task. I decided to work on the registrations and log in for the front end and let the group know which task they could each pick up. In addition, I had broken down what exactly each thing does on the project as well as how it works and where to work on it. But i would also help with the client side as it was about 80% of the whole website and too much for 1 person to do.
